

The proposed plan to decimate current regulations that protect net neutrality is a travesty. These regulations ensure that the internet remains an open space for communication and ideas. Net neutrality is critical to the preservation of free speech in this country and must be protected at all costs.